

Working with Refugee and Vulnerable Migrant Children

Background

Asylum seekers are some of the most vulnerable people in society and they can sometimes be misrepresented in the media.

The UK asylum process is complex, which can make it a difficult system to understand and in November 2017 the Government published a strategy on working with unaccompanied minors and refugee children.

This half day course aims to support professionals to improve their capacities to contribute to safeguarding good outcomes for children and young people from families who have sought refuge.

Learning Outcomes

This course will enable practitioners:

- To identify the distinction between refugees, asylum seekers and other migrants.
- To address the misconceptions regarding asylum seekers and refugees and their experiences
- To understand the multi-agency responses needed to safeguard children and young people affected.
